

If you are seeking submissions - I'd recommend having one of your interns read some short essays I submitted a few months ago and report back. That way the next time you come to visit New York to look at contemporary art, you'll have a leg up on what the f@ck is going on.

With all due respect John Henry.

- Brian Block (via email)

Thank you for your interest in the Daily Constitutional. Our editorial staff has had the pleasure of living and/or working in and around New York City for a total of twenty-two years. Since we don't currently have the luxury of employing interns, we passed your essays on to a friend, and supporter, who possesses a wealth of literary knowledge, and made a call based on a series of mutual accords. We do, however, wish you the best in your future endeavors.